Sunny yellow, blackbird size
The Oriole to England flies to Lakeland, its favourite spot
But escudades in Spain are here
I saw while sitting, drinking beer!
Enjoyed and bringing evening cheer

This was the second of my artworks to be featured in "Visions of the Month" in the Periodicals section of Arts & Illustration Magazine, October 2011 issue ("Fusion Flower Mix" was featured in Partelle in the March 2010 issue) & also selected for the National Exhibition of Wildlife Art (NEWA) 2012, Atlanta, GA 1107.

At Carriel del Condado (formerly Casa Olvera), Carriel Grande, Spain, in late May 2011, every morning at dawn we were awoken by the distinctive fluting sounds of Golden Orioles. As we mentioned inadequately and sporadically on the way, we were lucky to see the birds leading across the steps (Luzmar from Unconquered appears!) in between pecking at the steps they were chasing each other about—obviously pre-nuptial. We were so lucky that a flock of Orioles stopped off in the valley. The first day of our trip here, we saw 3 birds. By the end of the week there was only a solitary male, so this was "right place, right time!" The best place to see Orioles in the U.S. is a Louisiana/ Texas Reserve (East Anglia), which I visited once and heard one croak, but never caught a glimpse. Even though they are these beautiful rich yellow, they are commonly difficult to spot amongst the birds. But what beautiful birds, and to make make a few lines!

It is not the financial reward for my work which matters; what is precious to me is the lovely, smiling faces of the people who look at my pictures and then wish to hang them on their walls, giving nature to them when they cannot see it live for themselves. I recently saw quoted: "Only one life—live it!" So please respect all life on earth, and earth's gifts to us.

I am a professional, self-taught, natural history (Wildlife) and botanical artist who also offers illuminated letter design with gold leaf. My favourite medium is water colour, but I also use oil, coloured pencils, graphite and acrylic. Commissions are accepted in any subject.

Since 2005 I have been successful at many national and local exhibitions, and work has sold to clients the world over, including Australia, America, Canada, India, Mexico, Spain, France, Hong Kong and China. Two of my paintings were available as quality wooden 'Whimsy' jigsaws (2011-2014) made by the Wentworth Puzzle Company, and I have designed and handcrafted my own, unique, magnetic 'Diwejisaw' puzzle. Also available are traditional 1,000/500 piece jigsaws. A lily painting was chosen (2011-2014) by Ling Design for card and notelet production.

In 2010 I received a Certificate of Botanical Merit for my work entitled 'Passion Flower Bits' at the Society of Botanical Artist's annual exhibition, London. Two works were finalists in the BBC Wildlife Artist of the Year Awards (2009 and 2012). Work has featured twice in Artists and Illustrators Magazine Port Folio section, once as picture of the month. Several works were contracted to Felix Rosenstiel's Widow & Son (2011-2013); I am listed in Who's Who in Art, and in the Dictionary of International Biography.

I design, print and handcraft my own range of calendars, cards and other items, based around my artwork. Current project: coffee-table book preparing all the script and artwork about Bourn Brook, Cambs: 'Torrid or Torrential the meandering Bourn – a Brook in transit'.
